DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 12-16, 33, 41, 50, 65, 66-71 drawn to method of manufacturing IC substrate and optical communication device, classified in class 438, subclass 48.
- II. Claims 1-11, 17-28, 29-32, 34-40, 42-49, 51-64 drawn to IC substrate and optical communication device classified in class 257, subclass 738.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make another and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case unpatentability of the Group II product invention would not necessarily imply unpatentability of the Group I process invention, the product of the Group II invention could be made by a materially different process from that of the Group I invention. For example, method of manufacturing IC substrate in claim 12 includes a solder resist layer having an opening but it would be possible to deposit a resist layer first then etch to make a hole, and method of manufacturing optical communication device claim 41 includes flowing resin film between substrate and PCB but it would be possible to deposit resin on the substrate first then put the PCB on the resin film, that would constitute a materially different processes which could make the product of group II.

Restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper because all these inventions listed in this action are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and there would be a serious search and examination burden if restriction were not required because one or more of the following reasons apply:

- (a) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art in view of their different classification;
- (b) the inventions have acquired a separate status in the art due to their recognized divergent subject matter;
- (c) the inventions require a different field of search (for example, searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries);
- (d) the prior art applicable to one invention would not likely be applicable to another invention;
- (e) the inventions are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Further the application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Species 1: drawn to IC substrate, it appears that claims 1-11 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 2: drawn to manufacturing method of IC substrate, it appears that claims 12-16 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 3: drawn to IC substrate, it appears that claims 17-28 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 4: drawn to optical communication device, it appears that claims 29-32 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 5: drawn to method of optical communication device, it appears that claim 33 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 6: drawn to optical communication device, it appears that claims 34-40 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 7: drawn to method of optical communication device, it appears that claim 41 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 8: drawn to optical communication device, it appears that claims 42-49 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 9: drawn to method of optical communication device, it appears that claim 50 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 10: drawn to IC substrate, it appears that claims 51-64 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 11: drawn to manufacturing method of IC substrate, it appears that claim 65 read on this particular embodiment;

Species 12: drawn to manufacturing method of IC substrate, it appears that claims 66-71 read on this particular embodiment;

The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claim is generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
